Encyclopedia of Native American religions : an introduction

New York, NY: Facts on File, 2000.

Subjects: Indians of North America—Religion—Encyclopedias.

Summary: This resource covers the spiritual traditions of Indigenous Peoples in the United States and Canada before "contact," and the consequences of this contact on sacred traditions and contemporary religious forms. This book provides an understanding and appreciation of the nature of spirituality, and makes reference to early ceremonies and contemporary rituals. It also provides biographies of Indigenous American religious practitioners, Catholic and Protestant missionaries who influenced Aboriginal traditions, as well as information on disease and Aboriginal medicine, ceremonial races, games and sacred clowns.

Subjects: Racismô Canada. Race relations.

Summary: "I'm your resident bitch for the day!" That's how internationally acclaimed anti-racism expert Jane Elliott describes her role in this real documentary that challenges Canadians' attitudes towards Indigenous Canadians. Her confrontational teaching style turns the table on participants, pitting the "brown eyes" against the "blue eyes". Whether or not you agree, that's Elliott's starting point as she welcomes and bullies 22 Canadians who have volunteered to participate in her workshop.

Last steps to freedom : the evolution of Canadian racism

Winnipeg, MB: Gordon Shillingford Publishing, 1998.

Subjects: Racismô Canadaô History.

Summary: This book traces the experiences of Chinese, Ukrainian, Jewish, Japanese, Black, and Indigenous Canadians. In each case, early activities and contributions by groups and individuals are explored. Figures mysteriously absent from our history books such as Viola Desmond, Big Bear, Ivan Pylipiw, and others are celebrated. The systemic racism against which they struggled is explained.

Cowboys and Indians : the shooting of J. J. Harper

Toronto, ON: McClelland & Stewart, 1999.

Subjects: Discrimination in criminal justice administrationô Manitoba.

Summary: In 1988, J. J. Harper, an Aboriginal leader, was shot by a Winnipeg police officer. During the next 10 years, the twists and turns of cover-ups, inquiries and racism clearly illustrated the problems that existed between the police force and the Aboriginal community. Written by a journalist, the book reads like a mystery, but has a serious message about the importance of the Charter of Rights and Freedoms in balancing citizens' rights with police powers. Black-and-white photographs illustrate the main people involved.

Aboriginal education : fulfilling the promise

Vancouver, BC: University of British Columbia, 2000.

Subjects: Canada. Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples. Native Peoplesô Educationô Canada.

Summary: This resource is a series of essays delineating the current research on Aboriginal education. Both Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal educators offer insights on the existing research, policy, efforts and programs established to actualize Aboriginal education that incorporates Aboriginal philosophies and approaches to life-long learning. The content is organized into four main parts to reflect the following: the evolution of policy in Aboriginal education; efforts to conserve Aboriginal languages and bring Aboriginal voices into communication media; a discussion on approaches and innovation in pedagogy; and Aboriginal education in Aboriginal controlled post-secondary institutions.

The battle of the St. Lawrence : the Second World War in Canada

Toronto, ON: Harper Perennial, 2004.

Subjects: World War, 1939-1945ô Saint Lawrence River.

Summary: Dating back to 1812, Canada' waters were peaceful. That all changed in World War II on May 11, 1942, when Canada came under attack from German U-boats. Over a period of two years, 18 merchant ships and four Canadian warships would be destroyed. More than 300 people were killed, including 260 Canadians. Drawing on first-person accounts, both Canadian and German, the author examines this period in Canadian history. Included are maps, a table of contents, appendices, an index, and research sources.

I have lived here since the world began : an illustrated history of Canada's Native people

Toronto, ON: Lester Publishing, 1996.

Subjects: Native Peoplesô Canadaô Pictorial works.

Summary: This is a well-researched account of Canadian Aboriginal history from pre-contact times to the present. Following chapters discussing the influence of the land on the diverse languages, lifestyles and traditions of Aboriginal peoples, the book presents a chronological examination of social and political change over time. Included are sections dealing with trade, early involvement in French and British conflicts, treaties, Indian Acts and current issues. The book discusses inaccuracies found in European drawings, and explores the reasons for common misconceptions about historic events or traditions. The book contains a table of contents, a preface discussing terminology used in the book and the ways in which Aboriginal history has been filtered through European viewpoints, numerous archival photographs, 32 pages of colour photographs illustrating Aboriginal art works and artifacts, a bibliography and an index.

Loyal till death : Indians and the North-West Rebellion

Calgary, AB: Fifth House, 1997.

Subjects: Riel Rebellion, 1885ô Participation, Indian.

Summary: This account of the events surrounding the 1885 resistance is written from a First Nations perspective. The book uses research from Elders throughout the province and from archival records to argue that Indians in Alberta and Saskatchewan generally remained loyal to the authority of the Queen and to treaty promises. The authors emphasize that the Indians' dispute was with an insensitive federal government, and that Indian involvement in the resistance predominantly consisted of isolated reactions to starvation caused by the betrayal of the Canadian government, as it failed to fulfill its treaty obligations.
